1. Watch me take you where no man has gone, dared to go, even with me holding their hand. Look north and see me, south not but east and west are mine and south coming. I love you. Who would have achieved, conceived, the moment wherein I be-take you now, betray you now, not; belie-ing the facts stated here, I me you. Thank you for this moment, this privilege; the why's and why not's, not; but the fortitude/tenacity that brought/brings you to this moment here now, in London 2006, September, before October the fifteenth, not; way before/into me. I love you all.

2. See now not the starched shirt but simple man who wouldn't be denied. Watch me all him and take/do with him what should have/could have been done/achieved/conceived long ago. I believe. He believed the words I gave him day after day and cried in agony in some, rejoicing in others, dilemma felt with many, yet always looking for those words in me that gave me him, gave him me, gave us insight and revelation into each other. I love you/him.

3. Now see the shirt not off his back but one satisfied puppy not; one gentleman in me, gentle and loving and kind, meek above all, allowing my teaching/reality to come forth, be brought forth, by one so simple/believing. A doctor at that, at whom I bow. I bowed before, I bow after. I bow before all. I love you. Thank you for persevering and getting that doctorate. I put it/all to good use now, leading/training my leaders for tomorrow, not; today, the now is/being.

4. This is the day, tame tiger not; one solidified one in my wordship that brings forth my wordship in many/throngs. Watch me. At once I do this. Watch me, enjoy me, our adventure yours, if you choose me/it. I love you.

5. This is the day, moment, hour and all things change suddenly, not; suddenly cataclysmically; and who can say I saw it coming? My prophets who died to see. That's who. I love you.

6. Read my words in print several times a day and let the porous nature be filled to overflowing/the brim, and reach out into me for my words yourself. I love/thank you. Amen.

7. See the new digs coming, new pad, place, position, title: me. I love you. Amen.

8. Think not a moment forgotten or delay, deterred or delayed. I have all things/people in my hand. The marriage scheduled/takes place. Now and now is/being. I love you.

9. Into my kingdom/place you reside in only me, my house, father's.

10. I love you all. Be replete. You are.
11. Thank you no fear. I love you.
12. Holding you hand, I smile, looking eyes wide open expressing my love/sparkle with you. Our love shines like the noon day sun. We are one. I love you. Amen.

13. Think it not strange the twists and unexpectances. Adventure and smile. Trust/trusting me all/always/in all things/these things/happenings.

14. Nuance not their words. Enjoy, appreciate; sayonara.

Amen

Me
Yours
